As Time Goes By was formed from a passionate desire of Paul Mordecai to produce high quality feature clocks and architectural features.

We specialised in the design and manufacture of architectural features incorporating clocks, roof turrets, weathervanes and complimented by bespoke products to meet customer specifications. Bringing together over 25 years of experience in the design and manufacture of clocks and architectural features

As Time Goes By sets a new standard in quality and price.

As Time Goes By employs highly skilled craftsmen using the very latest materials and manufacturing processes ensuring quality and longevity. Over time we have built a solid reputation built on trust, innovation and professionalism. We do not only produce products listed on our website; we provide a design and manufacture support service to help you develop the best feature product you desire. We believe that we have the skills to produce a product that exceeds your expectations.
